Central Valley Freedom Coalition presents

Hmong Cultural Perspectives & Human Trafficking

Featuring Chee Yang, Program Director,
Valley Crisis Center, Merced

June 22, 2016 • 10 - 11:30 AM

Nielsen Conference Center

3110 W Nielsen Ave, Fresno, CA 93706

In 2006 Marian Perl published an article in Glamour Magazine about the life of an activist from Cambodia, who was a former sex worker. Yang came to the realization that something similar was happening within the community she grew up in. Yang did not fully grasp the dynamics of this until she started her advocacy work with Valley Crisis Center in 2013.

As a young Hmong woman, Yang feels she is battling two wars–her transitional self and social justice way of thinking. Yang aims to find community accountability in her current role as Program Director for Valley Crisis Center. Yang brings a unique approach in creating social change, bringing awareness, and bridging allies, because she understands that direct services alone cannot stop violence in a community that doesn't talk about abuse.
