PRESS RELEASE

Advance Peace Fresno will continue to save lives in the African American community, thanks to $300,000 in federal funding

(Fresno, CA) Advance Peace Fresno will receive $300,000 in federal funding to expand and continue the work of healing in our community. It is the first Advance Peace program in the nation to receive funding from the federal government, thanks to Representative Jim Costa (CA-16). The goal of Advance Peace Fresno is to reduce gun violence, specifically in the African American community, by building relationships and transforming lives.

Efforts by Advance Peace Fresno and other community advocates are making a difference in southwest Fresno. Advance Peace Fresno Neighborhood Change Agents have spent hundreds of hours in the community building relationships to help prevent cyclical and retaliatory violence and encourage individuals to build their life goals. They put themselves in the middle of dangerous situations, sometimes just after a shooting occurs or while violence is escalating. Neighborhood Change Agents speak to family members of victims and shooters to cool tempers, restore calm in the neighborhood, and repair relationships.

Advance Peace Fresno Program Manager Aaron Foster said, “The people who commit these crimes, know us. That’s why we’re so effective. Because as soon as it’s a personal connection, it’s not a job. We do it out of passion, and the problems out there become our problem, and we try to be the best remedy to those problems.”

The new funding is part of the Fiscal Year 2022 government funding package signed Tuesday (March 15) by President Joe Biden. Advance Peace Fresno is one of 10 local projects receiving funding thanks to efforts by Representative Jim Costa. Congressman Costa announced that he secured a total of $11,004,664 in Community Project Funding for projects in Fresno, Madera, and Merced Counties.

Advance Peace Fresno is operated by Fresno Economic Opportunities Commission. CEO Emilia Reyes said, “We are making a difference in our communities and saving lives. We are thankful to Congressman Jim Costa for understanding the importance of reducing gun violence and pushing for funding. We are honored to receive this significant federal acknowledgment and investment from Congress. This additional funding will help us to expand the program and focus on youth.”
